EUROPYTHON

2016

The largest European conference for the Python programming language

For over 20 years, Python has been successfully used as a programming language in industry and service companies as well as in research and science for a variety of tasks. Python has made a lot of changes since its inception. The easy-to-learn programming language has blurred the boundaries between users and developers. Using Python, scientists, engineers, finance professionals, designers, and others can develop solutions to complex problems quickly and without much programming experience. Innovative software companies using Python can enter new markets because they can satisfy the needs of users more quickly than their competitors. Universities all around the world are already using it as the standard in many programming courses and in many different topics.

EuroPython 2016 is organized by the Computational Intelligence Group of the University of the Basque Country, the Asociación de Ciencias de la Computación Python San Sebastián (ACPySS) and the EuroPython Society (EPS) for the Python community.

EUROPYTHON 2016 IN BILBAO

Join the European Python Community

After a huge success in Bilbao (Spain) last year, EuroPython 2016 will take place in the same place. Our aim is to keep the conference growing both in impact and attendance. More than 1200 Python developers, students and enthusiasts from all over Europe and abroad are expected to attend EuroPython 2016 Bilbao.

The EuroPython conference is the highlight of the year for the European community of programmers. All Python enthusiasts, from beginner programmers to the most expert ones, have their place in this conference: experienced programmers present their know-how, students widen their knowledge and beginners will learn a lot in a very short time.

EuroPython has always distinguished itself by a unique atmosphere to share knowledge, create synergies and support networking around Python programming. It is the perfect place for companies to connect with the Python community and get in touch with motivated developers. In fact, EuroPython has become a well-known meeting point for international companies and highly-qualified junior and senior programmers, creating an excellent environment to look for new job-opportunities, recruit people, connect, share and learn.

The city of Bilbao openly supports all kinds of technology-related events and activities for the last couple of decades and offers all kinds of services for carrying out initiatives such as the EuroPython Conference. The city has emerged from a metalworking industry-based era and has converted itself into a modern metropolis, becoming the major cultural and financial reference point in north Spain. The superb infrastructure and varied services of the city have been the main reason to choose Bilbao as the next EuroPython host.

Since the first EuroPython in 2002, much effort has been made to make the yearly EuroPython Conference what it is today. Collaborators all around Europe, together with the on-site team, are working hard to make the conference in Bilbao a great and successful experience. This is a great opportunity to make the Python community stronger and experience that Python is more than just a programming language.

Dates

EuroPython 2016 will take place from July 17th to July 24th, 2016 at the Euskalduna Conference Center (ECC), a brand new, modern, award winning conference-venue in Bilbao, Spain.

Following the Python convention tradition, the conference presents a high quality and full featured 8 days conference program with more than 200 talks, keynotes given by top class speakers, training sessions for beginners, advanced and experts attendees. In the last three days of the conference program (Friday afternoon, Saturday and Sunday), we will run several sprints in the Bizkaia Aretoa center of the University of the Basque Country to further development of Python-based software and programming Dojo sessions for those willing to improve their skills.
